Statement of Qualifications and Interest in the Resource Conservation District - John Ricker

The Santa Cruz County Resource Conservation District is playing an increasingly important role in watershed management and water quality protection in Santa Cruz County. As a non-regulatory entity, the District has the confidence of many members of the public and is in a good position to provide public education and technical assistance for erosion control, road restoration and manure management, among other areas. The District has recently sought out and received many grants for watershed restoration and management. It is important that these efforts be well directed.

I believe the current Board of the RCD is doing a good job. However, if there are vacancies on the Board, I would offer my services. I believe my long history in the county, experience in watershed management, and long term role as a program manager at the County would help to guide the District in its current activities. In addition to my professional experience I also am an owner of agricultural land, timber land, and several horses. I have direct personal and practical experience and involvement in many of the issues that the RCD is involved in.
